

CLAS Post-Conference Writing Workshop Featuring Denver Poet Jake Adam York

Join CLAS for its first ever post-conference writing workshop on Saturday, March 8 at the Inverness Hotel following the regional spring conference from 4:15 – 6:30.

Write poetry with Denver's own Jake Adam York! We are excited to bring this new event to the conference for just $30. Jake's second volume of poetry elegizing martyrs of the Civil Rights movement, A Murmuration of Starlings, is garnering rave reviews:

Jake Adam York's new collection of poems, A Murmuration of Starlings, is a fierce, beautiful, necessary book. Fearless in their reckoning, these poems resurrect contested histories and show us that the past--with its troubled beauty, its erasures, and its violence--weighs upon us all. York's words, like wings, rise from the ash of silence--a murmuration so that we don't forget, so that no one disappears into history. --Natasha Trethewey, Pulitzer-Prize winning author of Native Guard

Please notify Mark Overmeyer now by phone at 303-916-9459 if you plan to join us so that we can reserve a space. You can pay the fee of $30 at the conference.

Also, remember that the Inverness is giving us great room rates at only $99 through Saturday night! Call 303-397-6400 now and mention the CLAS conference to get the best rate!
